TRUMAN STRONGLY SUPPORTS MEAT CONTROL PRICES

3-Man De-Control Board Appears Only Hope For Relief from Regulation

TRUMAN STATEMENT

Blames Shortage Partly On Congress for Allowing Recent De-Controls

By Charles B. Selh

(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—A statement of strong Presidential support for meat price controls left the meat industry today with its only hope for relief from regulation.

President Truman told a news conference that he sees no need for any relaxation of price controls on meat.

He declared: "In my opinion, to take price controls off now would make the situation much worse in the future."

Mr. Truman predicted that the present meat shortage, which he blamed in part on Congress for allowing de-control during July and August, would be relieved before long. He said that he sees no reason for a special session of Congress on price controls.

The President's statement indicated that so far as the Administration is concerned, meat control is a closed issue. Previous statements by Agriculture Secretary Anderson and OPA Chief Porter have placed them on record as wholeheartedly in favor of the present control setup.

However, the Congress-created Price Control Board is the final authority in the matter and present plans of the meat industry call for action that will eventually bring the issue before the board.

The beef industry, bell-wether for the meat business in general, will start the ball rolling when it petitions Secretary Anderson for de-control on October 8th by law. Anderson must either reject an industry petition or refuse to act before the matter can be brought before the decontrol board. The whole procedure, from petition to Anderson to final decision by the board, is expected to take at least 40 days.

Once the board acts, its decision cannot be revised by any other government agency or court. Congress is its only superior.

Thursday's activities raised the long-smoldering meat situation to a full-fledged political issue.

Henry Wallace, the little mischief, dropped a bomb the other day. Henry is always up and atom.

And Truman, poor man, said that he disapproved the Wallace speech he said he had approved; that all he meant to say was that Henry had a right to say what Henry said, which was that Harry said to Henry that what Henry said was Harry's policy.

That makes everything crystal clear to us here at home who have known the boys since childhood. But those who live at a distance say that they don't understand what the boys are saying. Their doubts even disturb our Secretary of State. "It burns me up," Byrnes is reported to have thought.

Well, anyhow, with Harry's blessing on Henry's right to say what Henry wants to say—and he always wants to say something—Henry says he is going to go on saying what he wants to say.

So, the Democratic National Committee has Henry booked in a dozen crucial states as the main speaker for the party, with Harry's blessing to say whatever Henry thinks. As Henry is the heaviest thinker the party, or any party, ever had, Chairman Hannegan's worries are now over.

As Harry also hangers and homes to go on the stump, I know how pleased we would all be—and what

Thomas Baker, 35, son of a well-known Newtown township farmer, returned to his home voluntarily on Tuesday and then went to the Friends Hospital, Philadelphia, for treatment.

Police along the Atlantic seaboard had been alerted with a request that Baker be apprehended when seen. Police had recovered an automobile in which Baker fled, Sunday, after escaping while being transferred from the Woman's College Hospital in Philadelphia to the Friends Hospital.

The car in which Baker fled was owned by Dr. Frieda Baumann, of the Woman's College hospital staff.

Inability to get sugar for canning purposes has caused housewives to use substitutes, which do not nearly reach the standards of sugar, members of the Warrington Farmers' Club were told at their meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Zetty, of Colmar.

The women had been asked to explain how they managed to do their canning without sugar, and a number of them said they used syrup as a substitute with the result the fruit does not have the right flavor.

In this connection it was said fruit growers were unable to dispose of their produce when it was found impossible to get sugar, and this resulted in some of the fruit spoiling in the orchard.

MOST DANGEROUS AGE FOR DRIVERS, 16-21

Discloses Drivers in This Group Responsible For Most Fatal Accidents

SUGGESTS A COURSE

Sixteen to 21 is the dangerous age for drivers.

Harold R. Danford, widely known safety education director of the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives, disclosed that drivers in this age group are responsible for more motor vehicle accidents involving deaths and human injuries than any other age group.

"This is a shocking statement, alright," Mr. Danford declared, "but there is an answer. If parents and teachers would insist that every high school student take a course in driver education, the problem of 'teen-age auto accidents' would soon be well on the way toward a permanent solution."

Mr. Danford, himself an educator of many years' experience, has visited every state in the country to address educational bodies on the need for safe driving courses in the high schools and each summer assists in instructing groups of teachers who are to teach such courses in their communities.

While the Pennsylvania State Department of Education recently employed a specialist to develop a state-wide program of driver education for high schools, the addition of these courses to the regular curriculum is a matter that must be decided by the local school boards and high school administrators.

"If drivers were as careful in operating autos as engineers are in designing cars and highways, there would be fewer traffic accidents," Mr. Danford declares. "It is common knowledge that more than 85 per cent of all mishaps on the streets and highways are caused by errors in judgment, lack of skill and other faults of drivers which can be greatly improved by tested educational methods."

"Teen-agers are now not only the worst traffic offenders but it must also be remembered that about 1,000,000 new teen-age drivers take to the highways every year and thus constantly increase this already great hazard. If all high school boys and girls were trained in correct driving practices, it would not be many years until virtually all drivers were safe."

"LAY STILL, CATFISH!"

A headline in a leading New Deal newspaper says that a War Veteran has "REFUTED" the charge made by Republicans that the PAC, to which the Democratic slate in this campaign has sold out for $500,000 in campaign slush-funds, is dominated by Communism.

The word "refuted," which means disproved, is an error. The veteran in question neither proved nor disproved anything. He merely DENIED.

This denial reminds one irresistibly of the story of the Southern boy who was trying to clean a slippery and wiggling catfish.

"Lay still, catfish!" he exclaimed. "I ain't a-goin' to do nothin' to you—only gut you!"

What the PAC spokesmen are saying to the American people is precisely parallel:

"Lay still, suckers! We ain't a-goin' to do nothin' to you—only crucify you!"

The veteran whose remarks were hailed as "refutation" of the pro-Communist charge is William Miller, chairman of the CIO Veterans of Pennsylvania. Miller has an impressive war record as an infantry private, having suffered 15 wounds on the Anzio beachhead.

No one has questioned Miller's bravery nor his patriotism. But in sober judgment it must be conceded that during Miller's absence from the United States, things may have happened here which he has not yet had a chance clearly to understand.

Such is the case. One of those things is that the Democratic party, with its political philosophy dating back to Thomas Jefferson, got traded out by its big-shots to a band of labor radicals functioning through the PAC.

And another thing which happened is that the CIO-PAC labor movement got taken over by pro-Communists working on the inside.

Miller's statement ignores both these points. In fact, he denies what no one has said—that the PAC membership itself is communist. He says:

"It seems a strange paradox to us that men and women who have fought in four corners of the earth to rid the world of all forms of totalitarianism, can suddenly become 'Communists' to serve the political need of an unscrupulous individual."

CLEAR WEATHER IS PROMISED FOR THE PARADE ON SAT.

Weatherman Informs Committee Head Day Will Be A "Dry" One

"PENNA. WEEK" EVENT

Line To Move Promptly At 1 P. M., Starting On Farragut Avenue

"Saturday is going to be dry and clear," according to C. S. Wetherill, Jr., chairman of the parade committee in charge of arrangements for the parade to be held tomorrow. The parade was originally scheduled for last Saturday as the concluding feature of "Pennsylvania Week" as planned by the Bristol Chamber of Commerce. Rain caused the postponement last Saturday.

Mr. Wetherill today said that he had contacted the weather bureau in Philadelphia, and that the bureau's prediction is favorable for tomorrow. The parade will comprise five divisions and will consist of industrial floats, fire companies, Boy and Girl Scouts, decorated bicycles, and other features.

The line will move promptly at one o'clock with one long blast of the fire siren on the fire station of Bristol Volunteer Fire Co. No. 6. The parade will proceed west on Farragut avenue to Pond, Jefferson, Radcliffe, Mill, Bath, Buckley, Beaver, and disperse at Prospect street.

Fire companies from Bristol and nearby communities will have their apparatus in line, and Goodwill Fire Co. No. 3, parading as Darktown, will be accompanied by a 155-piece string band in costumes.

Chief of Police, Linford J. Jones, today called attention to the police regulations which he issued last Friday in preparation for the parade. These regulations were:

Parking will not be permitted on Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, Jackson, Monroe, or Madison streets, from 12 o'clock noon until after the parade has left the area.

Parking will not be permitted on Farragut avenue; Jefferson avenue; Mill street; Bath street, south of Buckley street; Buckley street; Beaver street, south of Prospect street or on Prospect street from 12 o'clock noon until after the parade has left the area.

Free parking facilities will be found on the borough's free parking lot in the rear of Mill street, where a very large number of cars can be accommodated. Bristol police will be augmented by a detail of Pennsylvania State Police, and Bristol special police, who will be posted at strategic points to guide traffic, protect the public, and to aid in every possible way to make the occasion a happy and pleasant one for the visitors as well as those of our permanent population.

BREAKS LEG

Mrs. Nellie Wiedmer, Bath Road, who fractured a leg, was removed to St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J., yesterday, in Bucks County Rescue Squad ambulance.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

Secretary Anderson says meat controls will stay . . . 111,000 meat workers are out of jobs, more than 20 thousand butcher shops are closed, hospital patients are getting horse meat and it's obvious the whole program is working dandy.

The CIO Meat Packers with uncanny accuracy for a bum steer want the packers, who haven't got any meat, investigated for not having any meat.

When you call a sandwich shop here the answer is "What will you have . . . Turkey on toast, turkey on white bread or turkey on whole wheat?"

You also get a choice of dressing but it's still turkey. By the time Thanksgiving comes around we will all be giving the bird to the national bird.

Ten coal mines closed in Illinois . . . The miners said they couldn't dig coal on a diet of lettuce sandwiches.

That means no coal unless we can train rabbits to swing a pick.

And in Columbus, Ohio, a man stole 18 pounds of pork and was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary . . . The only place in town which has meat. Apparently he will be punished later.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Farm income will reach a record high this year but faces a 10 or 15 per cent decline in 1947 because of decreased Government payments and higher production costs, the Agriculture Department said.

The Senate War Investigating Committee gave the Joint Chiefs of Staff until tomorrow morning to remove the secrecy from the Canal project and make documents available. Senator Kilgore was elected to succeed Senator Mead as chairman of the committee. The War Assets Administration reported that virtually all surplus property in the Pacific had been turned over to the Philippines and to China. WAA Deputy Administrator Creighton resigned, following disclosures before a House committee, of irregularities in domestic sales.

Pittsburgh remained strike-bound despite the dissolution of an injunction against power workers. Seven of Hollywood's ten major studios were again tied up by an AFL jurisdictional feud, but there were signs that the threatened national maritime strike might be avoided.

Installations on Guam suffered $1,500,000 damage in the recent typhoon, complicating the Navy's task in erecting a powerful base. Admiral Nimitz said.

The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission took the first definite step toward international control in unanimously adopting a basic scientific report.

A procedure to limit speeches and speed the work of the Conference of Paris was adopted by the plenary session. Greece withdrew her demands for cession of northern Epirus by Albania. Russia accused American financial interests in Rumania of having reaped profits from the death and destruction wrought upon the Soviet Union and said United States fliers had bombed Rumanian oilfields long after there was any military need.

Secretary Byrnes, breaking his silence on the Wallace affair, said President Truman's actions were "most reassuring" to the world since they showed that American foreign policy would be continuous regardless of which party was in power.

Greek Communists presented a six-point formula, including the withdrawal of British troops, as the basis for joining a coalition government. Fighting increased along the Yugoslav and Albanian borders.

Moscow has extended its purge to the collective farms, accusing managers and Communist officials of diversion and theft.

Navy Trained Russians To Operate Seaplanes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The Navy disclosed today that it secretly trained 140 Russian airmen in this country in 1944 as part of a $100,000,000 lend-lease deal, in which 188 Navy patrol bombers, 190 of them equipped with the Norden bombsight and the latest types of radio and radar gear, were transferred to Russia.

The action helped to create the Soviet Union's naval air force, because before that time Russia had no naval planes. The Russian aviators sent here for training were unable to operate seaplanes.

The Navy gave no details on the agreement, but it was reported that the project received a high priority from President Roosevelt.

The Navy said that the deal, known as "Operation Zebra," was set up in March, 1944, and that 138 bombers, 50 of them fully equipped, were sent to Russia.

Standard time will again go into effect at two a. m., Sunday, Sept. 29th.

King George II of Greece Flies to Greece

London—King George II of Greece left London by air today to return to his throne after five years of exile following his recall in a plebiscite by the people of the Hellenes.

Scheduled originally to fly to the British island of Malta, where he was to have boarded a Greek destroyer for the final lap of his journey, latest reports said a British overseas airplane would fly him to some Greek port.

He began his journey under somewhat inauspicious circumstances in view of mounting civil strife in the border regions of Greece. But following the recent vote in the plebiscite on whether Greece was to remain a monarchy or become a republic, King George realized that as a result of the overwhelming vote accorded him it was his duty to return.

Sub-commission chairman K. V. Novikov of Russia suggested that a report be drawn up to this effect and submitted to the Italian Political and Territorial Commission, thus returning the whole problem to the commission. Novikov's suggestion will be discussed later today.

IVANHOE UNHORSED

Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe" formerly was required reading in many high schools. Maybe it still is. And quite a number of people have read Ivanhoe for pleasure on their own account and not because they were required to do so.

Loyal Scott readers may be interested—and somewhat appalled—to learn what one of the major film companies is doing with (and to) the story of Ivanhoe. The company is making an "adaptation" of it to be known as "The Black Knight." "Adaptation" is the word, quotes and all, because one of the brain children of the movie master minds is to have Ivanhoe marry Rebecca in the film, instead of Rowena as he did in the book.

If they're going that far, they might as well have the Black Knight, otherwise King Richard Coeur de Lion, marry Rowena, although history has it that he already had taken a lady named Berengaria as his queen. They might even have Wamba the jester marry her.

Ivanhoe has been filmed before, and with reasonable fidelity to the story as Scott wrote it. What the cinema conjurers seem to be doing now is cooking up a classic example of how not to tamper with a classic. Or maybe they figure nobody reads the book these days or remembers it from former days.

PEAK YEAR FOR PARKS

Although final figures will not be in for some weeks, this year has been the biggest in the history of the nation's national parks. From Yellowstone, Yosemite, Glacier and all the rest the story is the same, more tourists by far than in any previous year.

From tourists the word is: Inadequate accommodations. Park hotels and lodgings were crowded day after day, with would-be patrons frequently turned away. Adequate refurbishing of tourist accommodations was impossible this year, and the outlook for next year is that enlargement of facilities will be impossible under present chaotic conditions in the building industry and government regulations.

In this respect the parks do not differ from other tourist resorts. Nowhere has it been possible to add to facilities to cater to tourist needs the like of which vacation and tourist spots never saw. Southern winter resorts, with crowds beyond anything seen before assured this winter, will be unable to offer accommodations for many who will seek them. But this will not deter northerners bound for southern resorts. They will take pot luck, and their experiences will give them something to talk about, as they did in other sections of the country last summer.

America is currently tourist minded, and nothing short of a depression will enable those who cater to tourists to provide sufficient facilities for those who flit hither and yon.

There are those who hold attempting to revive the corpse of the OPA was unwise. They say it stinks.

Even if it were true, which it is not, that someone had charged the returned veterans with believing in totalitarianism, the paradox would not be quite so strange as Miller appears to believe.

It was demoralized Russian soldiers and war veterans who set up a Communist dictatorship in Russia; discouraged German war veterans who helped put Hitler in power; war-shocked Italian veterans who made Mussolini a dictator.

But Miller's statement misses the whole point of the Republican attack. It is not the membership of PAC which is accused of being Communist, but the bosses at the top.

Miller already is under one of the tightest forms of totalitarianism ever devised. He simply does not recognize what is under his nose. There never was a firmer dictatorship than that over the members of CIO unions and the rank and file of the PAC.

Was Miller consulted before the PAC made its deal with the Pennsylvania Democratic candidates—"$500,000 campaign slush-funds in return for a blank check of power if you are elected?"

Neither was anyone else in PAC except a few insiders at the top. And the only way they can expect to make their end of the bargain stick is by typical dictatorial methods—campaign-funds blackjacked out of CIO members' pockets by threats of being fired, plus votes "requested" in the same bullying fashion.

If Miller does not know that the PAC is a Communist organ, he had better catch up on his homework. A king-pin Communist, Earl Browder, blue-printed the PAC; President Roosevelt freed him from Atlanta penitentiary in time to help Sidney Hillman put it into operation for the 1944 campaigns. Miller was abroad, as he says, fighting totalitarianism in Europe, when this occurred on the homefront.

Who runs the PAC? John L. Lewis, who helped found the CIO, which is the parent organization of the PAC, says the Communists are running it; he ought to know. He says Philip Murray is their "captive," which is a word well adapted to describe the position Miller and his associates play in the organization.

The Dies Committee proved that Communists are running the PAC—proved it out of labor publications like the Daily Worker, and out of the Communists' own files. No doubt Miller has accepted the Communist "smears" of the Dies Committee on their face value. Before he goes farther, he ought to examine the Dies Committee's evidence itself.

The brain-trusters of the PAC have recently been under heavy fire—not from Republicans, not from outsiders, but from strong and responsible persons in the CIO unions themselves. What do these fellow union-members charge? They charge that these PAC brain-trusters are either avowed Communists or fellow-travellers. And they further charge that the labor movement is being sold down the river by them in an effort to put across a collectivist revolution.

The really "strange paradox" is that a few patriotic young men and women who beat down totalitarianism on foreign soil should be so blind to realities that a small number of them cannot recognize the same evil at home—that they should permit themselves to be cat's-paws and dupes for alien forces seeking to overthrow American freedom and replace it with collectivism.

huge crowds would come—if Harry and Henry stumped each other together on the same stump. They would show the world what a beautiful thing free speech can be. And what a wonderful presiding officer Mr. Byrnes would make! Why, with the three of them freely saying out loud what they don't think, and thinking what they don't say, the G. O. P. wouldn't have a whisper. It would be such a remarkable demonstration of democracy in action as to win votes even from black Republicans.

Under the powerful cross-fire of these great orators (every cross, I would say), I can just see the Republicans in the audience wince and wilt as Henry and Harry lambast the G. O. P. as a party torn and divided, without a policy, incapable of governing. For unworthy partisan purposes and at a time when all discord should end at the water's edge, the G. O. P.'s might pretend that they don't know what our foreign policy really is. But don't let them fool you. They know well enough. Henry and Harry have told them.

I would love to be at the meeting. Henry would quote the immortal Roosevelt, "The United States shall and must remain, as long as the Father of our Country prayed that it might remain—unentangled and free." (Oct. 2, 1935).

And then Harry would quote the immortal Roosevelt, "The peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort to uphold laws and principles on which alone peace can rest secure." (Oct. 5, 1937).

And then Henry would quote the Peerless Leader, "I have pledged myself to keep America free of those entanglements that move us along the road to war." (Oct. 2, 1935).

And then Harry would quote the Peerless Leader, at a press conference, that "Any prediction of U. S. foreign policy must be pure guess work," emphasizing that he (F.D.R.) "did not know what it would be himself." (Oct. 15, 1937).

Yes, sir, I sure would like to be at that meeting. Why, with a national hookup listening to such clear and convincing argument, the G. O. P. had better fold up. Henry says it is "certain to disappear," anyway. Probably that's why he made his speech.

HIGH JUNIORS WIN OPENER AT GLENSIDE

Sustained March of 58 Yards
Nets Touchdown And Victory

FINAL SCORE IS 6 TO 0

Bristol Team Played Excellent Ball, Especially on The Defense

GLENSIDE, Sept. 27—A sustained march of 58 yards gave the Bristol Junior High School a touchdown in the third period which netted the Bunnies a 6-0 victory over the Glenside-Weldon Junior High, yesterday afternoon, on the latter's field.

Coach "Ben" Watson's lads received the ball on Glenside's 42. Al Daniels clipped off three yards at tackle and then Alex Monti whipped a 22-yard pass to "Goops" Favoroso. Spearing added six more yards on an off-tackle slice and this was followed by an end run by Daniels which netted seven yards and put the ball on the four-yard line.

Spearing cracked into the Glenside line-up in a vain effort to score as when the pile was unscrambled he was still one foot away from the last chalked stripe. Monte faked the ball to Daniels and then slipped through the line for the touchdown. The extra point try was missed.

The Bristol team, underdogs in the match, played excellent ball, especially on the defense. The Bristol boys were led by Monte and Daniels who aided in registering six first downs. Joe Armento did yeoman's work in the line.

Glenside also had six first downs and were led by its captain, Hedricks. The Weldon school reached the 17-yard line of Bristol in the fourth session but on three successive plays, the Bristol line broke through and tossed the Glenside backs for a total of 30 yards loss.

Most Dangerous Age
For Drivers, 16-21

tually every driver on the road would know what he or she was doing. Studies made in various parts of the country where driver education has been a part of the school program for several years or more show conclusively that the trained student is involved in many less accidents than the untrained driver of the same age bracket.

"The U. S. Army recognized this fact early in the war and in 1942 set up a comprehensive training course for all troops who were responsible for the safe and efficient operation of its motor vehicles."

Mr. Danford pointed to the remarkable success Delaware has achieved with driver education in its high schools. "Despite the proven value of driver training," he said, "less than 20 per cent of all the high schools in the country offer driver education. On the other hand, less than 20 per cent of the high schools in Delaware fail to offer such courses."

Driver education in Delaware was started by a state police sergeant named Clarence Lynch, who made it practically a personal crusade. Sgt. Lynch had been patrolling the highways, giving out tickets and picking up bodies for years. It seemed senseless to him to continue trying to correct errors after someone had been killed or injured, so he set about convincing state officials, school authorities and parents that it is much more better to teach the young folks how to drive safely before they get into trouble.

Through the active cooperation of the Delaware Safety Council and the State Highway Department the sergeant finally got his wish, and today Delaware is reaping the benefits of his one-man crusade. In two and a half years the sergeant trained 1,800 students and 1,500 of them have become licensed drivers on Delaware highways. During that time just three of his trainees were arrested. Of these, only one had been involved in an accident; he ran into an unlighted farm wagon in the dark, was cleared of responsibility and discharged. Drivers training courses in Delaware cost no more than Latin or algebra, and somewhat less than chemistry.

"Driver education in high schools is perhaps not an immediate solution to the traffic safety problems because you can't take most of the present drivers back into the classrooms and put them through the course," Mr. Danford says. "It is a long range program bent on achieving permanent reduction of traffic accidents by not only teaching teen-agers the proper way to handle a car, but also developing in them proper driving attitudes and habits."

A recent nationwide opinion survey made for the National Committee for Traffic Safety showed that 78 per cent of the people believe students in high schools should be given lessons in actually driving a car.

The National Conservation Bureau was the nation's pioneer organization in the field of driver education and published the first complete high school textbook on the subject, "Man and the Motor Car." This book is now used in more than 4,000 high schools throughout the country. The bureau being a strictly non-profit organization, devoted solely to the prevention of accidents, the book is made available to schools at the cost of publication in the interest of public safety. First published in 1936, it has undergone 30 new printings. The Bureau has also cooperated with the Center for Safety Education of New York University in the preparation and widespread distribution of the pamphlet "Behind the Wheel," a guidebook for adults who may give actual behind-the-wheel driving instructions to their children or friends.

"The automobile," Mr. Danford declares, "has taken its place among the foremost necessities of contemporary life—but, through no fault of its own, at a terrible cost! Nearly 300,000 persons killed and 11,000,000 injured and billions of dollars in property loss! That is the price of carelessness during the past 10 years."

The automobile is a blessing that can be used and enjoyed without paying this shocking price. We can do much to attain this desirable goal by establishing universal driver education and training.

not displayed to warn that a freight train was on the crossing.

al Executive Committee instructed Party Chairman Robert E. Hannegan to "discuss with the decontrol board and any proper authorities ways and means of increasing the meat supply available to the American people."

When told of Hannegan's mission, the President said that if Hannegan thought that price controls should be removed—and he did not know that Hannegan thought so—then the President disagreed with him on that particular matter.

The President was strong in his defense of OPA and his criticism of Congress for failure to re-enact the price control legislation last spring as he requested.

He asserted that the meat shortage "cannot be laid at the door of the OPA." Rather, he said, it has been due to the fact that Congress, through its failure to act on the price control measure, permitted two months of uncontrolled meat sales.

Prior to the program, tribute was paid to a club member, Mrs. Elliott Ely, who died recently. Announcement was made that the club was awarded a first prize of $2.50 for its float at the observance of Warrington Day.

Reporting for the legislative committee, G. Frank Shutt commented upon the resignation of Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Commerce. He also spoke of co-operative farming in Russia.

Mrs. Reuben A. Martin spoke on the causes of fear among children when she gave the report for the health and hygiene committee, and Mrs. Clarence L. Detweiler, who reported for the domestic science committee, gave a number of recipes.

There's no meat shortage at the home of Elmer O. Strouse, Danboro, who returned Monday night from a moose hunting trip to Canada with a 1,000-pound buck. Strouse, accompanied by Walter Fryse, Philadelphia, left on September 8th, by automobile for Lake St. John.

Strouse and Fryse were successful in bagging the moose the first night of the season, which opened September 15th. The sad part of the hunting story is that a large part of the delicious meat spoiled en route home because of a lack of refrigeration.

When asked if he were going to have the head stuffed, Strouse replied, "No, it didn't have a nice rack."

The trip from Lake St. John to the moose hunting grounds is long—52 miles by automobile and then eight miles by canoe. Each hunter had his own guide. They slept on the ground at night and cooked their meals in the woods.

HARRISBURG (INS)—When a local farmer could not spot his pet cow in its usual pasture one muggy September day, a search revealed the animal standing hip-deep in a rushing stream under a high culvert.

SPORTSMEN'S

BY JOE ELBERSON

National honors . . . Ollie Hobbs, most widely-known fresh water anglers in this area, gained national recognition last Sunday when he placed third in the National 3-ounce Accuracy Plug Casting Tournament.

Ollie won his laurels at the 26th Annual Open Casting Tournament conducted by the Dover Fishing Club at Fairmount Park. Top honors went to Archie Vogel, Paterson, N. J., who turned in a score of 98 out of a possible 100. Hobbs' score was 95.

Hundreds of experts from every state in the Union were on hand for the events.

In addition to his national honors, Hobbs, who cast under the colors of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, also took first place in the 3-ounce accuracy open event; third in the skish matches; and third in the 3-ounce accuracy competitions.

History . . . America's first woman marksman of note was not Annie Oakley. She was Alice Ferree, wife of a famous gun maker who lived more than a century before Annie.

According to Dot Lind who is the better half of the "Shooting Linds," noted Western-Winchester exhibition shooters, Mrs. Ferree was the wife of Jacob Ferree, famous Pennsylvania maker of "Kentucky" rifles.

"Jacob Ferree was a descendant of one of the original colony of French Huguenots who were the first to form a colony at Lancaster, Pa., which is reputed to be the birthplace of the famous 'Kentucky' long rifle," according to Mrs. Lind.

"Ferree manufactured gun powder and made many of the fine long rifles which have now been called Kentucky rifles. These rifles got their name principally because woodsmen like Daniel Boone used them in their explorations and wandering through Kentucky.

"While Jacob Ferree ran the 'production department,' turning out these wonderful long rifles by hand from stock to sight, his wife, Alice, handled the testing. She not only tested the gun-powder, but every rifle as well. Her fame as a crackshot was widespread throughout the area. She was not only America's first well-known woman marksman, but doubtless the first woman targeteer, a job which today is almost exclusively handled by men," Mrs. Lind said.

License necessary . . . in this State you must have a hunter's license to hunt, take, trap, or kill any wild birds or wild animals, whether protected or not. A hunter's license is necessary to hunt foxes, crows, hawks, or other unprotected species, as well as game.

Disappeared . . . the weed-covered island which stood in Silver Lake since the Lake was remodeled several years ago has now disappeared. It was simply lifted out and deposited at the southernmost extremity of the Lake where it will form part of the roadbed for the new super-highway now being built. By removing this island from the Lake the actual water area has been reduced a negligible amount.

BRISTOL HIGH TO MEET TRENTON TEAM TONIGHT

Local Eleven to Play Second Game of Season Under Lights at Trenton

KICK-OFF AT 8 P. M.

Bristol Team Lacks Strong Offense, Says Coach

Bristol High will play its second game of the season tonight, meeting "Eddie" Wadwick's Trenton Catholic eleven under the lights at Dunn Field, Trenton. Opening kick-off is scheduled for eight o'clock sharp.

Despite the fact that Catholic has had a tremendous weight advantage over Bristol every year since the start of their football relationship, the Bunnies have always managed to play wonderful ball against the Trenton club, and two years ago beat them, 6-0, when Joe Elmer ran 60 yards on an intercepted pass.

Coach Harry McClester and his assistant, Don Fetterman, put the team through some hard paces this week and appeared satisfied with the showing of their proteges. The Bunnies did excellent work against Vineland last week and held them to a 13-7 score when everyone was predicting that Bristol would be swamped.

The only thing lacking in the Bristol lineup is a strong offense.

Coach McClester has little worries about his team on the defense, but is still working on an offense that will be able to manufacture touchdowns.

This afternoon, Falls Township will play Lower Moreland at the latter's field, while Coach "Woody" Wetherhold's Bensalem team opens its season by meeting Germantown Friends on the Cornwells Heights field. Wetherhold has seven lettermen back from last season.

Coach "Mike" DeRis's Langhorne Redskins will travel to Riverside High tomorrow night to play the Jersey school under the lights.

BASEBALL GAME

A baseball game will be played on Leedom's field tomorrow afternoon with the Suburban League champions, St. Ann's A. A., meeting Edgely A. C. The game will begin immediately after the parade has been disbanded and will be the concluding part of the "Pennsylvania Week" program. Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., will start the game by throwing out the first ball.
